Five Great Ways to Save

Welcome to the March edition of the Indigo Wholefoods Newsletter.

February has been another excellent month for Indigo Wholefoods. We have many new products, some of which are replacing older products with new ones that we consider to be better value for money to our customers. Such as the James White Vegetable Juice range, during March and April these are £2.55 for 750ml which compares to the Eden range which were well over £3.00 for the same amount. This continues our commitment to provide ethical products at value for money prices. Enjoy the Newsletter.

Easter 2010

Indigo Wholefoods Website

We understand how much people dislike seeing Easter Eggs in the shops almost immediately after Christmas. This is why we have refrained from bringing our Easter Eggs in until the first week of March. We are just over four weeks until Easter which this year is on Sunday, 4th April. Our range includes Divines Fair Trade Easter Eggs and Green and Blacks Organic Easter Eggs. Carbon Neutral Website

If you regularly take a look at the Indigo website at www.indigowholefoods.co.uk you will notice a new logo just below the navigation bar. It says Carbon Neutral Website. As part of Indigo's commitment to keep our carbon emissions to an absolute minimum, we have offset the emissions of hosting the website through a company called CoCo2. For anyone who may be interested they include a listing of all the websites that have offset their emissions in this way. A positive step for a greener economy.
